

Tools for the Journey:

12 Ways to Dedicate Time to Your Child's Education

by NCF Dads like you (via NCF's Facebook)

Any work from school that they are having trouble with is reinforced at home by getting copies from the teacher and studying at home.

-John S.

We read books based on colors numbers and shapes.

-Travis L.

We do an hour of schoolwork every Sunday.

-Tom H.

Attend school functions, be a WatchDOG, ask questions and work with her on assignments, etc.

-Jeff H.

I am the classroom parent and PTA president for my daughter's school.

-Jeff K.

My kiddos are not school age yet. So, I read to them every day, and I don't just open up a book and read. I ask them to point out sight words, find different shapes and colors in the book.

-Chad F.

Check their homework, listen to them read.

-Clint S.

I only get my 2 year old 30 hours a week so I started making learning fun by playing and learning at the same time

-Nathan B.

Watchdogs at school.

-Gordon D.

Attend school events and class trips with my oldest. And my youngest son, I volunteer for book reading in his class.

-Brian R.

We have a little mantra we say: Books are food for the brain. Reading is the key to learning. And education is the key to my future. And everything takes practice!

-Joel H.

My son is 15 months, I stay at home with him during the day why mom works.. I make it a point to teach him one new thing everyday.

-Jeremiah K.

National Center for Fathering

Engaging fathers. Enriching lives.™